Ozark, Union Disagree About Talks' Status

St. Louis (AP) A management spokesman says the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association and Ozark Airlines have recessed negotiations to allow the union time to consider an offer made by the airline.

Samuel Smith, president of Local 24 of the AMFA, said however that the negotiations in Washington were "terminated" Monday night and that the company did not offer anything new.

Ozark serves 62 cities in 15 states. The union represents about 550 employees of the company.

Smith said the union's membership would reject the latest company proposal because it fell below the 5.3 per cent guideline issued by the federal pay board.

The old contract with Ozark expired last April 1. The union members have been free to strike since a 60-day cooling-off period ended at midnight Saturday.

A spokesman for the company, which is based in St. Louis, said normal airline operations were expected to continue for the immediate future.

 Attention has been focused on the Democratic race for mayor, which has incumbent Alphonso J. Cervantes seeking a third term. He's opposed by Comptroller John Poelker and State Rep. James Conway.
 Aldermanic President Joseph Badaracco is the leading candidate for the Republican mayor-

Music of Film, TV, Stage to Be Played at EHS
 Music of movies, television and musicals will be featured at the annual Winter Band Concert of the Edwardsville High School Concert Band. The concert is at 8 p.m. Saturday in the EHS cafeteria.
 The 80-member band is made up of 22 sophomores, 32 juniors and 26 seniors, said band director Cleon Etzkorn.
 Tickets at 75 cents for adults and 40 cents for students may be purchased from band members or at the door.
 Major works on the programs, which was made up by the band members themselves, are music from Richard Rodgers' "Victory at Sea" suite; selections from Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story"; Harold Walters' "TV Suite," including Sagebrush Saga, Whodunit, Big Name Band and Hayloft Hoe Down, the last featuring a trio made up of Mary Caban, Kay Firsching and Doris Frisse, and the woodwind quintet "March of the Siamese Children" from Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The King and I."
 The quintet consists of Kay Firsching, flute; Karen McCown, oboe; Marty Hagemester, clarinet; Dave Runyon, French horn, and Roger Proffitt, bassoon.
 Other works on the program are themes from the movies "Exodus," "Quo Vadis," and the Colonel Bogey March from "The Bridge on the River Quai."
 In the opening work, the theme from the movie "Patton" is combined with the theme from "Hogan's Heroes," the television series.

SIU Scene Male Signup Down Elsewhere, Not Here
 By SIU News Service Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville is not experiencing the drop in male enrollment evident in many other colleges and universities throughout the country.
 According to a U.S. Census Bureau population survey, the proportion of men enrolled in college declined by nearly 9 per cent between 1969 and last fall.
 The survey also shows the percentage of women enrollees has remained approximately the same since 1969.
 Figures from the SIU-E Registrar's Office show male enrollment holding a steady lead over total women enrollees. Enrollment figures for fall quarters, 1969 through 1972, show approximately 1,500 to 2,000 more men enrolled than women.
 The breakdown for those quarters at SIU-E shows the following: 1969—7,002 men, 5,150 women; 1970—7,992 men, 5,708 women; 1971—7,447 men, 5,409 women; 1972—6,705 men, 5,130 women.
 The national decline in male enrollees has been attributed to the rising cost of higher education and the change in draft deferment status for young men.
 According to Robert Bruker, registrar at SIU-E, one reason the national trend does not seem to exist at SIU-E is because of the nature of the campus. "We have largely a commuter-type campus here, and there are quite a few men who work full-time and come to classes at night," Bruker said.

Collective Bargaining Discussed Faculty to Move Cautiously

By Dick Norrish Of the Intelligencer A group of Southern Illinois University faculty decided Monday night to move slowly and cautiously toward setting up a faculty collective bargaining procedure at the university.

Only nine faculty members showed up at a meeting in the Peck Classroom Building. Indications were that several others could not attend because of other commitments.

Last night's organizational meeting was called last Thursday by member of a 10-member ad hoc faculty group set up to try to get faculty organization off the ground.

Last night the group talked about planning toward an April 4 open meeting in the Community Room at First Federal Savings and Loan Association in downtown Edwardsville, to which all faculty would be invited.

The primary purpose of the April 4 meeting, it was agreed last night, would be to set up a permanent, internal faculty structure, with bylaws, which would define problems common to faculty members and explore the possibility of bringing in an outside agency to help the faculty bargain with the administration.

David Hofmann, associate professor of education, agreed to head the organizing committee, but only until the April 4 meeting.

Robert Hildebrand, assistant professor of education, agreed to get examples of bylaws of similar faculty organizations.

Richard Parker, associate professor of biology, and Dudley Curry, chairman of the Foundations of Education department, agreed to work on a proposed structure of the faculty group to be set up April 4.

The group generally agreed that the faculty should establish a solid internal group before starting talks with organizers from union-type teacher groups.

The group talked briefly last night about which faculty should be "allowed in the union"—whether to exclude, for instance, department heads and deans. It was decided to leave this up to the committee to be formed April 4.

Some members of the group cited problems they felt were common to all faculty at SIU-E, and with which a bargaining procedure could deal: a feeling of "over-all powerlessness," "arbitrary decisions by the administration," and "selective favoritism" in making promotions.

Decisions seem to be made by the administration in disregard of the wishes of the faculty, some said.

Parks College The proposed acquisition of Parks College of Aeronautical Technology and a cooperative PhD program with St. Louis University and Washington University were given as examples of decisions made without consulting the faculty.

Some faculty members cited a rumor that "tenure will be frozen as of July 1."

SIU-E President John S. Rendleman said it was "just a rumor" and that the Faculty Welfare Council, a council of the University Senate, is talking about "strengthening" the tenure system.

Ralph Axtell, biology professor who is chairman of the welfare council, told the Intelligencer today that his group has named an ad hoc committee which is studying tenure.

"There have been a number of complaints that the period of determining whether tenure should be given a faculty member is too short," Axtell said. The ad hoc committee is studying "moving closer to AAUP (American Association of University Professors) guidelines on tenure."

The guidelines include allowing a longer period before tenure is granted or a faculty member is laid off.

Axtell also said that as far as he knew the rumor about tenure being frozen was just a rumor.

Meanwhile, foreign language professor Paul Guenther, president of the SIU-E chapter of the AAUP, said he will invite AAUP Executive Secretary Joseph Schwarz to the university, probably late in April.

Guenther said his chapter membership agreed, at a meeting Monday, to invite Schwarz here.

The national AAUP convention is scheduled for April 26 to 28 in St. Louis. Guenther said, and it is possible that Schwarz can visit SIU-E at that time.

He said Schwarz could talk to any groups or individuals interested in learning about collective bargaining, not just to the AAUP membership here.

Taliana Provides Consultation Service to Local Court System

A part-time consultation service in clinical psychology is being provided to the Madison County judicial system by Lawrence E. Taliana, professor of psychology at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

A "court clinic" is being established for the study of persons awaiting sentence, and Taliana will be working the equivalent of about one day a week for the judicial system.

According to the arrangement which was approved last week by Madison County officials, Taliana will work a maximum of 400 hours per year for the county. He will be paid on an hourly basis, only to the extent that he works. A specific annual salary has not been set, but Taliana said his fee would come to $35 to $40 an hour.

Criminal Court Judge John Gitchoff said that Taliana will look into a felon's previous delinquency or criminal record, his social background, his capabilities, his mental, emotional and physical health, and the rehabilitative resources or programs adaptable to his needs.

According to Gitchoff, the "court clinic" is the first of its kind outside Cook County. A felon ordinarily will be committed to the clinic for 60 days, while the study by the psychologist is in progress. After the study has been completed, a report will be submitted to the court and used by the judge to determine whether the felon should be sent to a correctional or mental facility.

Taliana said the position is strictly a consulting service, and he will continue full time as a professor of psychology at SIU-E. He said he agreed to provide the service after trying unsuccessfully to help the county find a qualified psychologist for the position.

"This won't cut into my other work at the university," Taliana said.

He said he hoped the clinic experience would help him develop academic programs in psychology at SIU-E. He said that SIU-E has no psychology clinic in which students can get experience, and that the court clinic "gives me the opportunity to get live material to present in the classroom."

He has been a visiting professor in the state university system of Oregon, and he served a year's internship in medical psychology at the University of Oregon Medical School.

Taliana has contributed to two books on research and counseling, and he has written research papers on psychology. He also has given lectures and appeared on television panel programs.

At SIU-E, he teaches psychopathology, personality dynamics and psychological assessment. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from SIU at Carbondale, and he received his doctor of philosophy degree from Purdue University.

Clark Oil Dealers File Antitrust Suit
Chicago (AP) An antitrust suit has been filed in U.S. District Court against Clark Oil and Refining Corp. by 81 Clark gasoline dealers.

The suit charges that, because of required one-year leases, Clark is able to "police and maintain the retail price of gasoline" sold by the service station operators.

The suit asks unspecified triple damages.

The dealers operate in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Forgery Claimed On School Bid
East St. Louis, Ill. (AP) The St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported today that Howard Cass, an employe of a sheet metal firm, said his signature was forged on a bid submitted to the last St. Louis school board.

His firm, the Lehman Sheet Metal Co., was among three bidding in November on a heating and air conditioning contract at an elementary school.

Cass said his name was forged on a bid from a competitor, Thrift Sales Co. of Belleville. Thrift's $25,430 bid was highest of the three. A spokesman for Thrift said the firm submitted no bid.

AIR FORCE LAUNCHES SECRET SPY SATELLITE
Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) A secret spy satellite to gather data on Soviet and Communist Chinese military developments was launched by the Air Force early today.

It was the second secret satellite launch of its type within three months.

The satellites reportedly are capable of monitoring the deployment of missiles by Russia and mainland China, of observing missile tests and troop movements and of providing instant warning of an all-out attack on the United States.

Two Sentenced For Bribery Attempt
Springfield (AP) Two Kansas City men have been sentenced to prison and fined for attempting to bribe a state employe to give them lists of Illinois' licensed drivers.

Judge J. Waldo Ackerman sentenced William B. Martin, 35, Monday to a year in prison and fined him $4,500. Larry Meuriott, 36, was sentenced to 1 to 3 years and fined $5,000.

Both men pleaded guilty in Circuit Court to charges that they offered $10,000 on March 6, 1972, to Norma Murray of Springfield to furnish them with magnetic tapes with the names

Illinois Scene Personal Property Info Sought

Chicago (AP) A Cook County Circuit Court judge has ordered officials in 82 counties to give him information on 1971 personal property taxes in preparation for expected refunds under a recent Supreme Court decision.

Judge James Mejda acted Monday on a suit filed by the Illinois Agricultural Association. The suit asked that the court direct county tax collectors to put funds collected from the 1971 property tax into escrow accounts.

Judge Mejda ordered the counties to tell him how much was collected in 1971 personal property taxes on individuals, how much was collected in penalties, how many persons paid the taxes, and how much it would cost to make refunds.

He also asked officials to tell him the interest earned on the 1971 tax funds since they were deposited in interest-bearing accounts in accordance with a court order last June.

Aide Says Howlett's Telephone 'Bugged'
Springfield (AP) An electronic eavesdropping device was discovered attached to a telephone in the Chicago office of Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, a high-ranking aide to the secretary says.

Lawrence Richardson, a top ranking aide in Howlett's Springfield office, disclosed the existence of the "bug," as he described it. He said it had been attached to the telephone of William Dart, Howlett's deputy and the second-ranking man in the secretary's office.

Dart, reached by telephone, denied that the object was a "bug."

"It was just some loose wires that he thought was a bug," Dart said. "But it wasn't any bug."
Anthony J. Pellicano, operator of Business Intelligence Unlimited, who was reported to have discovered the electronic eavesdropping device, refused to discuss it with a newsman who telephoned him.
